FIDE Rejects Match Between Kramnik and 2005 FIDE World Champion

The 2005 FIDE World Championship is to take place this September in San Luis, Argentina. Vladimir Kramnik has proposed that the Prague Unity Agreement be interpreted that that champion play him for the unified world championship. FIDE has rejected this proposal. Here are Kramnik's comments on this in his recent interview with the Russian paper " Sport Express " – the interviewer is Yuri Vassiliev :

Vladimir, now a few questions about the world championship. Fide management, in particular its vice-president Georgios Makropoulos, has given to understand that your suggestion to have a match between the Argentina tournament winner and yourself for the world champion title is unacceptable. Moreover, the players taking part in the world championship tournament in Saint-Louise were asked to sign some papers – and they signed them – in which they undertake not to play in any “alternative championships”, that is those outside Fide. Are you not afraid you will be isolated as a result?

- I think that my match against the winner of the Fide world championship in Argentina is absolutely logical. Considering the processes which began after 2002, it would be a good solution to the problems. I think that the probability of such a match taking place is fairly high.

- Makropoulos told me very clearly: The world championship in Argentina will not become, under any circumstances, as he expressed “a qualifying tournament to play against Kramnik.”

- Here, on the face of it, we have a distortion of facts. If this is a qualifying tournament, my match against Leko was also a qualifying match. Only the part of my qualifying happened earlier. That was not my fault. It was also not my fault that the Kasparov-Ponomarev match was cancelled, or the Kasparov-Kasimdzanov match did not take place. I went through my qualification. And it was not any easier than the tournament in Argentina. I think I am speaking objectively. Nobody should feel offended by the current situation. I don't see a single person who will feel disturbed over my match against the winner of the tournament in Argentina. If, of course, this tournament happens... Such match will be interesting for the entire chess world, because it will be a true unification match. Fide should also benefit by it. I don't understand why the winner of the Argentinean tournament should be against. In all probability sponsors for such a match will be found. In my view, this should not upset anyone, on the contrary it will benefit all. I will say more: I am certain that if the tournament in Argentina happens, then my match with its winner will also happen. After the publication of my press-release, I have already received offers from very big sponsors in the West, because the match is interesting for all.

The FIDE World Chess Championship Cycle 2005-2007

(from ChessBase Website)

- National Championships, which are the responsibility of the Federations.
- Zonals and Continental Championships, which are organized by the Continents. FIDE guarantees a minimum total prize fund of US $ 175,000 for the Continental Championships (the organizers must show proof of additional sponsorship money it has raised for the prize fund). FIDE retains 20% of the prize fund, the organizers get 20% from any additional prize fund. The number of qualifiers for each continent are: Europe 46, Americas 19, Asia 19, Africa 6
- The World Chess Cup, a knockout tournament with 128 players: the World Champion, four semi-finalists from the previous World Championship, the Woman's World Champion, two World Junior U-20 Champions (2004 & 2005), 90 players from Continental Championships, twenty 20 rated players, seven FIDE presidential nominees, three organizer nominees. There will seven knockout rounds of two-game matches. The first five placed players qualify for the Candidates Matches and the next five qualify for the Last Chance Super Tournament.
- The Last Chance Super Tournament consists of ten participants: five players from the World Cup (ranked 6-10), five players by rating. Three players from this tournament qualify for the Candidates Matches.

- The Candidates Matches:
 - The first round consists of five players from the World Cup, three from the Last Chance Super Tournament and the players who were ranked 3 and 4 in the World Chess Championship 2005.
 - The Quarter-Final Matches are played with the five winners from the first round Candidates matches, who are joined by the player who was ranked 2 in the World Chess Championship Tournament 2005.
 - The Semi-Final Matches consist of the three winners of the of the quarter-finals who are joined by the World Champion, i.e. the winner of the 2005 World Championship tournament.
 - The Final Match (World Championship) is played between the two winners of the semi-final matches. The winner of the World Championship Final match becomes World Champion.

Time Control: With the exception of Zonal Tournaments, Continental Championships and World Cup, all other events (Last Chance Super Tournament and Candidates Matches) will be played with the time control of 120 minutes for the first 40 moves, 60 minutes for the next 20 moves and then 15 minutes for the rest of the game plus an additional 30 seconds per move starting from move 61.
