2005 FIDE World Cup

This knockout tournament is being held in the city of Khanty-Mansiysk in Russia. It runs from Nov. 27 – Dec. 17. 128 players qualified for it in regional zonal, and continental tournaments, throughout the world, or by special inclusion. It is the first phase of the 2005-2007 World Championship Cycle. The top 10 finishers qualify to go into the second phase of the cycle, the Candidates Matches. The rounds are 2-game knockout matches. Tie-break is a 2-game rapid match, and then, if necessary, a 2-game blitz match, and then if necessary, a sudden death game ( White gets 6 min., and Black gets 5 minutes, but wins if there is a draw ).

As we reported last Issue, the Canadian champion, Pascal Charbonneau was eliminated in the first round by Alexey Dreev ( Russia ).

In the second round, the biggest upset was Vassily Ivanchuk ( Ukraine ), losing to Ivan Cheparinov ( Bulgaria ).

Then in Rd. 3, Cheparinov was upset by the 15 year old Norwegian sensation, Magnus Carlsen. Here is game 1 of their match, where Magnus is losing, but he hangs on and Cheparinov plays inaccurately, and lets Magnus back into the game ( Notes are by the Editor, using Fritz ) :

By the end of round 3, the only player from the Americas moving to round 4 was Gata Kamsky ( USA ) who defeated Ilia Smirin ( Israel ). Lazaro Bruzon of Cuba was defeated by Evgeny Bareev ( Russia ). Yuri Shulman ( USA ) was defeated by Alexander Grischuk ( Russia ). The 2 major upsets of round 3 were the defeat of Teimur Radjabov ( Azerbaijan ) by Loek Van Wely ( Netherlands ), and the defeat of Alexei Shirov ( Spain ) by Mikhail Gurevich ( Turkey ) [ In game 2, Shirov blundered the exchange on move 37, though at that point he was down a pawn and in a losing game ].

Round 4 saw 6 Russian players among the final 16 players. Though impressive, this is not the stranglehold on chess that the Russian/Soviet dynasty held years ago. Round 4 also saw Carlsen finally eliminated by Bareev, in the rapid tie-break match, 1.5-.5. Kamsky was defeated by Grischuk. Here is the first game of their match ( notes by Editor, using Fritz ):

Round 5 ( final 8 players ) started the holding of losers of round 4 matches, as well as winners matches, so that the final order of the top 16 players can be determined.

At the start of round 5. 5 of the 8 players were over 2700. The final surviving 8 players, and their pairings were :

Ponomariov, Ruslan ( Ukraine – 2704 ) vs Bareev, Evgeny ( Russia – 2675 )
Grischuk, Alexander ( Russia – 2720 ) vs Gelfand, Boris ( Israel – 2717 )
Aronian, Levon ( Armenia – 2724 ) vs Gurevich, Mikhail ( Turkey – 2652 )
Bacrot, Etienne ( France – 2725 ) vs Rublevsky, Sergei ( Russia – 2652 )

Each of these 8 players now qualify to enter the next phase of the World Championship, the Candidates matches.

Playing off for the places 9-16 ( the consolation pool ) are the eight losers from round 4. Their pairings were :

Carlsen, Magnus ( Norway - 2570 ) vs Lautier, Joel ( France - 2679 )
Kamsky, Gata ( USA – 2690 ) vs Sakaev, Konstantin ( Russia - 2668 )
Malakhov, Vladimir ( Russia – 2670 ) vs Dreev, Alexey ( Russia - 2694 )
Vallejo Pons, Francisco ( Spain - 2674 ) vs Van Wely, Loek ( Netherlands - 2648 )

This losers playdown is significant, not only in terms of more prize money the higher they finish, but players # 9 & # 10 also get to enter the next phase of the championship, along with players # 1 - # 8 ( and finishers # 11 & # 12 are reserve candidates, depending on who the Candidates' matches invitees are by rating – where one of the # 1 - # 10 are invitees by rating, then the next reserve player gets into the Candidates Matches ).

The winners for the spots # 1 – # 8 were Ponomariov, Grischuk ( won the 2 Blitz tie-break games ), Aronian and Bacrot, as expected. Here is an interesting game from this round 5 - Game 2 of Bacrot vs Rublevsky :

In round 5 of the consolation pool, Kamsky and Carlsen kept their championship hopes alive by winning their matches, along with Malakhov and Vallejo Pons.

The semi-final pairings for round 6 were : Grischuk vs Ponomariov; Bacrot vs Aronian. Fortunately, Kamsky and Carlsen could both make the Candidates Matches directly if each won in the sixth round ( consolation pool ), since they did not have to play each other- Carlsen vs Malakhov; Kamsky vs Vallejo Pons. The losers now continued to play off to determine the finishers from # 1 – # 16. The semi-final winners were Ponomariov and Aronian. Here is Game 2 of Aronian vs Bacrot :

(2) Aronian,L (2724) – Bacrot,E (2725)

In the consolation pool, Kamsky and Carlsen won their matches and will now qualify for the Candidates Matches, being # 9 & # 10 ( ranking depending on who wins in their final round 7 of the consolation pool ). The losers, Malakhov and Vallejo Pons, will play off in Round 7 of the consolation pool. The winner still has a chance to make the Candidates Matches, since the #11 finisher is the reserve candidate, where one of the top 10 qualify by rating, and thus allow the reserve candidate into the Candidates Matches ( this is a real possibility, since it is anticipated that 2 of the rating invitees, Kasparov and Kramnik, will refuse to play. This would allow, Bacrot, one of the top 10, to instead qualify by rating ).

The round 7 final pairing is therefore Ponomariov ( 2002 FIDE World Champion ) vs Aronian, which will be played today and Dec. 16, with tie-break if needed on Dec. 17.
