Aronian Wins 2005 FIDE World Cup

This knockout tournament was held in the city of Khanty-Mansiysk in Russia. It ran from Nov. 27 – Dec. 17. 128 players qualified for it in regional zonal, and continental tournaments, throughout the world, or by special inclusion. It was the first phase of the 2005-2007 World Championship Cycle. The top 10 finishers now qualify to go into the second phase of the cycle, the Candidates Matches, later in 2006. The rounds were 2-game knockout matches. Tie-break was a 2-game rapid match, and then, if necessary, a 2-game blitz match, and then if necessary, a sudden death game (White gets 6 min., and Black gets 5 minutes, but wins if there is a draw).

Last Issue, we reported on Rounds 1 – 6. The last round, Round 7, was played December 15 & 16, with tie-breaks on Dec. 17. The final match to determine the winner was Ruslan Ponomariov (2002 FIDE World Champion, and # 19 in the world) vs Levon Aronian (# 10 in the world). The other final fourteen players played off to determine the final standings from # 3 - # 16.

In the finalist match, Ponomariov and Aronian drew the first two regulation games. But then Aronian won both rapid tie-break games. Here is Game 1 of the tie-break :

Significant in the other matches was the finish in the top 10, of the only representative left from the Americas, Gata Kamsky, as # 9. In the last round, winning the two rapid tie-break games, he defeated the 15 year old Norwegian sensation of the tournament, Magnus Carlsen, who finished # 10. These two finishes were important because, as was mentioned, the top 10 finishers advance to the second phase of the 2005-7 World Championship Cycle, the Candidates Matches. Regulation Game 1 between these two was a wild affair which saw young Carlsen sack two minor pieces, and then later pick up a rook and pawn in exchange. Here is the game :

Also important was the finish of Vladimir Malakhov as # 11. This is because this is the reserve Candidate Match position. Should one of the top 10 finishers qualify instead to the Candidates Match by rating invitation, then the reserve finisher is called up to play in the Candidates Matches. There is a real possibility of this because two of the five invitees by rating are expected to decline – Gary Kasparov (Russia), because he has retired, and Vladimir Kramnik (Russia), because of his dispute with FIDE over his claim to be the Classical World Champion. If this happens, then Etienne Bacrot (France), one of the top 10 finishers, would become entitled to play by rating, and Malakhov would then gain a spot in the Candidates Matches.

The final finishing order of the top 16 players was :

1. Aronian, Levon (Armenia)
2. Ponomarev, Ruslan (Ukraine)
3. Bacrot, Etienne (France)
4. Grischuk, Alexander (Russia)
5. Bareev, Evgeny (Russia)
6. Gelfand, Boris (Israel)
7. Rublevsky, Sergei (Russia)
8. Gurevich, Mikhail (Turkey)
9. Kamsky, Gata (USA)
10. Carlsen, Magnus (Norway)
11. Malakhov, Vladimir (Russia)
12. Vallejo Pons, Francisco (Spain)
13. Dreev, Alexey (Russia)
14. Van Wely, Loek (Netherlands)
15. Lautier, Joel (France)
16. Sakaev, Konstantin (Russia)

Rublevsky Wins Russian Championship

This round robin championship was played in December, 2005. Sergei Rublevsky, 2652, was undefeated and led the field by a point. Noteworthy was the 7th place finish of Vladimir Kramnik, the 2000 Classical World Champion. Also, Peter Svidler, who finished third in the 2005 FIDE world championship, could only manage a 6th place finish here. Here are the final results :
